

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

ENVIRONMENTAL SECURITY SESSION 35th Annual International Conference on Soils, Sediments, Water, and Energy October 21-24, 2019 Amherst, MA

The Association for Environmental Health and Sciences Foundation announces the establishment of the Environmental Security Working Group in partnership with Norwich University. The working group has been convened to address the emerging issues surrounding the documenting, understanding, and acting against threats posed by environmental situations to individuals, communities, and nations. These include a wide range of examples from local man-made contamination sites to global climatic changes and from natural disasters to the use of environmental events by terrorists.

Norwich University has an impressive 200-year history in addressing a range of global security issues. The University brings to the partnership vast experience and expertise through its Peace and War Center, Center for Global Resilience and Security, and Center for Advanced Computing and Digital Forensics.

The working group's efforts will be highlighted as part of the Foundation's annual conferences in October (Amherst, MA) and March (San Diego, CA) in the form of a special session. We invite you to submit a relevant abstract for consideration for presentation at the 35th Annual International Conference on Soils, Sediments, Water, and Energy, October 21-24, 2019 in Amherst, Massachusetts.

Please visit our website for online submission of your abstract and biography. Our online system will guide you through the submission of your abstract, biography, and author information. Please note, there is a 300 word maximum for the body of the abstract. We will not accept emailed or faxed abstracts. All abstracts must be submitted online.

Deadline for submissions is March 15, 2019.
